

Uniform to Work Day Friday 25 June 2010

All service personnel (those not normally wear their uniform when on duty), reserve forces and cadet forces are encouraged to wear uniform at their civilian place of work on Friday 25 June 2010 where this is compatible with their civilian duties and local security considerations. In addition to security considerations, the wearing of uniform in civilian workplaces is subject to the following requirements:

- The individual wishes to wear uniform.
- The individual has been authorised by their commanding officer to wear the appropriate uniform – Comdt is happy in principle
- The employer/Head of Establishment is content for the individual to wear uniform at their premises or when carrying out their civilian duties for the employer.
